

Contributors

Chris BAKER is Honorary Editor of the Journal of the Siam Society. Together with Pasuk Phongpaichit, he most recently published A History of Ayutthaya: Siam in the Early Modern World (Cambridge UP, 2017), and From the Fifty Jātaka: Selections from the Thai Paññāsa Jātaka (Silkworm Books, 2019). Contact: chrispasuk@gmail.com

Brigitte BORELL graduated from Heidelberg University with a doctorate in Classical Archaeology. She worked for the German Archaeological Institute (DAI) at the excavations in Olympia (Greece) and the Institute for Classical Archaeology of the University in Heidelberg as a researcher. Later she lived in Southeast Asia for several years due to family reasons. She now lives near Heidelberg and works as an independent scholar and as an associate lecturer at Heidelberg University. Her special topics are ancient glass studies and the Maritime Silk Road in the early centuries CE. Contact: b.borell@uni-heidelberg.de

DHIRAVAT na Pombejra taught history at the Faculty of Arts, Chulalongkorn University, from 1985 till 2006, and is now an independent researcher on Thai history of the 17th and 18th centuries. He has written, edited or co-edited several works on the history of Ayutthaya. Among his most recent works is “Catching and selling elephants: trade and tradition in seventeenth century Siam” in Ooi Keat Gin and Hoang Anh Tuan (eds.), Early Modern Southeast Asia 1350–1800 (2016). Contact: takdhiravat@gmail.com

Lia GENOVESE obtained her PhD from SOAS, University of London for a thesis on “The Plain of Jars of Laos - Beyond Madeleine Colani.” She is based in Bangkok and lectures part-time at Thammasat and Silpakorn universities. Her fieldwork takes her to the Plain of Jars and other megalithic sites in the region, including Sabah, Sarawak, Sumatra and Sulawesi. Her other research interests include French colonial archaeology; gender archaeology; Iron Age mortuary practices; cultural heritage and research methodologies. Lia is currently working on a critical biography of the French archaeologist Madeleine Colani. She is a Member of the Siam Society’s Lecture Committee. Contact: trinacria_1955@yahoo.co.uk

Nicolas REVIRE is a lecturer at Thammasat University, Faculty of Liberal Arts, Bangkok, and holds a doctoral degree from the Université Paris 3–Sorbonne nouvelle in France. He specializes in the Buddhist art and archaeology of mainland Southeast Asia with a research focus on pre-modern Thailand and Cambodia. He is co-editor (with Stephen Murphy) of a collective volume titled Before Siam: Essays in Art and Archaeology (Bangkok, 2014), and is currently conducting a research project on “The Life of the Buddha at Angkor” for the Centre of Khmer Studies. Contact: nicolas@tu.ac.th

Alan STRATHERN is Associate Professor of History at the University of Oxford, and a Fellow and Tutor in History at Brasenose College, Oxford. Much of his work has concerned Sri Lanka, including a monograph, Kingship and Conversion in Sixteenth Century Sri Lanka (Cambridge 2007) and a co-edited collection, Sri Lanka at the Crossroads of History (UCL 2017). In recent years, his work has moved towards global comparative history, resulting in the book, Unearthly Powers: Religious and Political Change in World History (2019). Contact: alan.strathern@history.ox.ac.uk

Peter SKILLING lives in Bangkok. He is a professor of the French School of Asian Studies (EFEO; ret.), a special lecturer at Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok, and honorary associate, Department of Indian Sub-Continental Studies, University of Sydney, Australia. With Jason Carbine, Claudio Cicuzza, and Santi Pakdeekham, he is co-editor of How Theravāda is Theravāda? Exploring Buddhist Identities (Chiang Mai, 2012), and co-editor with Justin McDaniel of Buddhist Narrative in Asia and Beyond (2 vols., Bangkok, 2012) and Imagination and Narrative: Lexical and Cultural Translation in Buddhist Asia (Chiang Mai, 2017). Contact: c/o The Siam Society.

Paul Michael TAYLOR, a research anthropologist at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History, is director of that museum's Asian Cultural History Program, and serves as Curator of Asian, European, and Middle Eastern Ethnology. He is the author of numerous books, scholarly articles, and online works about the ethnobiology, ethnography, art and material culture of Asia, and about the history of museums and anthropology. <https://si.academia.edu/PaulMichaelTaylor>. Contact: taylorp@si.edu

TEJ Bunnag is an Honorary Member of the Siam Society. He has served on the Council at various times as 1st Vice President, Honorary Editor of the JSS and Honorary Librarian. His book, The Provincial Administration of Siam 1892-1915 (Oxford University Press, East Asian Historical Monographs, Kuala Lumpur, 1977), was translated into Thai and reprinted for the third time in 2013. Contact: c/o The Siam Society

Tony WATERS has been on the faculty of the Department of Peace Studies at Payap University, Chiang Mai, since 2016. He is also Professor of Sociology at California State University, Chico. In the past he has written about German classical social theory, subsistence agriculture, criminology, and refugees in Africa. In Thai studies he has studied refugees policy, Thai social thought, and literary translation. From 1980 to 1982 he was a Peace Corps volunteer for the malaria zone office in Phrae, Thailand, and in 1982-83 worked in refugee camps in Nan and Chonburi. Contact: watersanthony777@gmail.com

Ryan WOLFSON-FORD is a historian of 19th and 20th century Laos. His dissertation locates the indigenous roots of democracy and anti-communism in the Royal Lao Government era. He also researches 19th century Lao history using palm leaf manuscripts. His work has appeared in the Journal of Southeast Asian Studies, South East Asia Research, and will soon also be published in a forthcoming collected volume on monarchy in the era of decolonization. Contact: ryan.wolfson-ford@asu.edu